

As per National Assessment and Accreditation Council (NAAC) guidelines every accredited institution should establish an Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC) as a post-accreditation quality sustenance measure but in the case of St. Charles College of Education IQAC was formed in the year 2009 to measure the quality and augment its speed for progress toward appreciable standard.

Since then the IQAC has faithfully recorded its activities and published the News Bulletin to highlight some of them. It is with great gladness I pen these lines to be published in the 10th IQAC News Letter in 13 years of the existence of the College. All of the members of IQAC take time out of their busy schedules to plan, organize and oversee all of the events. Their work and energy are making a difference here at SCCE and we could not do these events without them.

A best practice is a method or technique that is superior to any alternatives because it produces results that are superior to those achieved by other means or because it has become a standard way of doing things. I particularly commend the IQAC's decision to have as a part of best practice, training sessions on English language conducted with Optimal blending: English acquisition + English activation = real usable English skills. Training sessions for English conversation were based on learning by doing within a permanent training and to communicate successfully not just to use in a controlled situation in the classroom but to use your English in real-life situations.

All of the credit of this year's annual IQAC newsletter must sit squarely on the shoulders of the members of the IQAC. It is through your dedication, hard work, and planning that I can feel happy that all events and activities were successfully executed. It is to you and your committee that I must offer my profound thanks, and I now know that future events have a new benchmark to meet. All of the credit of this year's annual IQAC newsletter must sit squarely on the shoulders of the members of the IQAC.
